Japan Believes Outbreak of U. S.-Japanese War is Inevitable

(By the Review's Tokyo Correspondent)

(Translations from various Japanese publications)

IF leading papers in Japan could be turned into English it would surprise Americans. They would be amazed to find in them all what they want to know of the function of their home Government and that nearly one third of the second page is quite often filled with affairs of their own country. What these papers write of the United States is confined to political, diplomatic and economic affairs. Since the beginning of this year prominence has been given to the reevaluation issue and a surprisingly large space has daily been occupied by this subject. This is by no means an exaggeration in view of the effect of the attempt on the economic circles of the country, but what makes the general public feel most nervous and ominously unsafe are affairs political in nature, such as the following, published in newspapers.

impression the people received from the new record set by Lieut.-Commander K. McGinnis may be represented by the sentiment in which the following comment is written by a Tokyo Nichi Nichi man: ".....We congratulate America on the great accomplishment of her fliers. Science and civilization are ever making the world smaller by conquering space and time. Simultaneously, we cannot lose sight of the fact that mechanical progress, especially in aeronautics, is ever endangering our sense of security. For years we have felt uncomfortable and isolated out here in the Far East, but at the same time there was the advantage of geographical security, such as was enjoyed by none of the Powers on the other side of the globe. Yet if it is possible to bring the air squadron of America from its home base to Hawaii in 25 hours, we must also consider the possibility of similar...
